Notice Date: January 21, 2022
To: Indiana Medicaid Providers
From: CareSource
Subject: CareSource Supports Members with Substance Use Disorders

Summary

CareSource has launched its first in the nation data-driven Substance Use Disorder (SUD) Home Model Recovery Support Program that exclusively focuses on filling gaps in care and meeting the complex physical, behavioral and social needs of individuals with Substance Use Disorder.

The program works in partnership with CareSource's Care Management team and uses Indiana-based clinicians such as social workers and peer recovery specialists, to help members find and stay in treatment. Providing each member with a dedicated team, the program works alongside select treatment providers to help coordinate care during critical transitions, connect members to social resources, and ultimately provide the dedicated, long-term support essential to sustain recovery.

Impact

The SUD home provides a structured, personalized support system for individuals with SUD, holistically guiding members through treatment and into early recovery and reducing harm along the way. The SUD home ensures that members receive coordinated, integrated and evidence-based care to produce optimal member health outcomes. This program comes at no cost to members or participating providers.

About Wayspring

Wayspring is a value-based care entity exclusively focused on SUD. The company leverages data analytics to outreach to the highest-risk individuals and delivers high-touch, community-based peer support, behavioral health, and primary care. Wayspring is partnering with the CareSource provider network to refer members to high-quality treatment, facilitate care transitions, and improve adherence to evidence-based medicine.
